General Competences

Taking into consideration the general competences that the degree-holder must acquire (as these appear in the Diploma Supplement and appear below), at which of the following does the course aim?

Search for, analysis and synthesis of data and information, with the use of the necessary technology	Project planning and management
Adapting to new situations	Respect for difference and multiculturalism
Decision-making	Respect for the natural environment
Working independently	Showing social, professional and ethical responsibility and sensitivity to gender issues
Team work	Criticism and self-criticism
Working in an international environment	Production of free, creative and inductive thinking
Working in an interdisciplinary environment
Production of new research ideas	Others...

-Search for, analysis and synthesis of data and information

- Criticism and self-criticism

- Production of free, creative and visual arts thinking

The main aim is for students to understand the basic principles of drawing and space organisation, so as to introduce themselves to the visual arts language and vocabulary and consequently to the process of research and methodology for the development of the topic and the building of a strategy for depiction.

(3) SYLLABUS

The workshop aims at contributing to the development of an extended visual arts practice and introduce students into contemporary visual arts pursuits as they are formed through the broadness and variety of the expressive media.

Special emphasis is placed on understanding the visual arts vocabulary, familiarization with the expressive media, methodology and topic development, research and collection or related material, as well as the documentation of the creative process and the formation of a personal style.

- The course includes practice, theory and implementation of assignments on the basic principles of drawing and synthesis, understanding of the formation of light on the surface, depiction of mass and space organization.
- In addition, students need to present a visual arts work, on the basis of special topics, with free use of media and techniques. Lectures during the semester on the requested topics and presentations/analyses of artists' works.

The development of the course content takes place in 13 weeks as follows:

- Lectures on the required topics (different each academic year) and presentations/analyses of artists' works.
- Tutorials
- Team corrections: analysis of typical errors or solutions of the students' work in the presence of all students and professors of the course.

Note: The course is continued and connected with the course Painting II = Free drawing II, in the second semester.

- Familiarization with visual arts Language and Vocabulary
- Understanding and management of collective (team) programs and aims of the Sculpture Studio
- Evaluation-self-evaluation of results of individual and collective visual arts research
- Responsibility and collaborative work, as determined by the concept "Laboratory"
- Application of methodological tools in visual arts research (search for, analysis, synthesis)
- Perception of three-dimensional analogical Space and Scale.

(3) SYLLABUS

The course content of the 1st semester of Sculpture Studio aims at introducing students to the three-dimensional field of analogical plastic-sculptural expression.

- I. Studio practices combined with the valuable help of the theoretical framework, aim at developing the student's visual arts perspective and research taking into account:
 - The historical language/plastic pluralism of expression
 - Techniques – technological innovations
 - The contemporary political and social environment
 - The Greek and foreign visual arts experience
- II. Presentations-lectures from the teaching staff of the Sculpture Studio aim at making students active agents in the visual arts field of the social environment. The aim is achieved through:
 - Collaborative work (the concept "LABORATORY")
 - Experimental – creative student expression

The course (1st semester) is developed in 13 weeks and is completed with the winter semester examinations. Its contents include:

- Lectures and presentations related to the themes of the required exercises (evaluation subjects of the winter semester)
- Tutorial, self-reflection and student feedback in relation to the produced work.
- Collective observations and evaluation of good practices in the produced work.

The exercises are "discipline" exercises and "free expression" exercises.

Note: The Sculpture courses (semesters) are sequential and the "discipline" exercises are obligatory for students attending the course.

The lectures – presentations are open for students wishing to attend them. The "discipline" exercises can be done freely by students from other semesters, provided there is enough space in the Studio.

Others...

- Search for, analysis and synthesis of data
- Criticism and self-criticism
- Production of free, creative and visual arts thinking

The main aim is for students to understand the basic principles of drawing, design and organization of space, deeper understanding of the visual arts language and vocabulary and consequently to the process of research and methodology for the development of the topic and the building of a strategy for depiction.

(3) SYLLABUS

The workshop aims at contributing to the development of an extended visual arts practice and introduce students into contemporary visual arts pursuits as they are formed through the broadness and variety of the expressive media.

Special emphasis is placed on understanding the visual arts vocabulary, familiarization with the expressive media, methodology and topic development, research and collection or related material, as well as the documentation of the creative process and the formation of a personal style.

The course includes practice, theory and implementation of assignments on the basic principles of drawing and synthesis, understanding of the formation of light on the surface, depiction of mass and space organization.

In addition, students need to present a visual arts work, on the basis of special topics, with free use of media and techniques.

Lectures during the semester on the requested topics and presentations/analyses of artists' works.

The development of the course content takes place in 13 weeks as follows:

- Lectures on the required topics (different each academic year) and presentations/analyses of artists' works.
- Tutorials
- Team corrections: analysis of typical errors or solutions of the students' work in the presence of all students and professors of the course.

- The principles of a critical outlook of phenomena in the visual arts field
- The use of methodological tools of expressing aesthetic rules in students' personal research

General Competences

Taking into consideration the general competences that the degree-holder must acquire (as these appear in the Diploma Supplement and appear below), at which of the following does the course aim?

Search for, analysis and synthesis of data and information, with the use of the necessary technology

Adapting to new situations

Decision-making

Working independently

Team work

Working in an international environment

Working in an interdisciplinary environment

Production of new research ideas

Project planning and management

Respect for difference and multiculturalism

Respect for the natural environment

Showing social, professional and ethical responsibility and sensitivity to gender issues

Criticism and self-criticism

Production of free, creative and inductive thinking

Others...

- Familiarization with visual arts Language and Vocabulary
- Understanding and management of collective (team) programs and aims of the Sculpture Studio
- Evaluation-self-evaluation of results of individual and collective visual arts research
- Responsibility and collaborative work, as determined by the concept "Studio"
- Application of methodological tools in visual arts research (search for, analysis, synthesis)
- Perception of three-dimensional analogical Space and Scale.

(3) SYLLABUS

The course content of the 2nd semester of Sculpture Studio aims at introducing students to the three-dimensional field of analogical plastic-sculptural expression.

- I. Studio practices combined with the valuable help of the theoretical framework, aim at developing the student's visual arts perspective and research taking into account:
 - The historical language/plastic pluralism of expression
 - Techniques – technological innovations
 - The contemporary political and social environment
 - Την The Greek and foreign visual arts experience
- II. Presentations-lectures from the teaching staff of the Sculpture Studio aim at making students active agents in the visual arts field of the social environment. The aim is achieved through:
 - Collaborative work (the concept "Laboratory")
 - Experimental – creative student expression

The course (2nd semester) is developed in 13 weeks and is completed with the spring semester examinations. Its contents include:

- Lectures and presentations related to the themes of the required exercises (evaluation subjects of the spring semester)
- Tutorial, self-reflection and student feedback in relation to the produced work.
- Collective observations and evaluation of good practices in the produced work.

The exercises are "discipline" exercises and "free expression" exercises.

An internal competition takes place among students of the Sculpture Studio in order to determine the Medal for the running event of the city of Ioannina. The implementation of the suggestions by students constitutes an exercise of the Art of Medals with the respective educational process.

* Discipline exercises, volumetric/plastic model impression from natural (head) or cast (busto).

 Free expression exercises, synthesis of geometrical elements of basic shapes with free choice of materials in application and simulation in space (maquette).

Note: The Sculpture courses (semesters) are sequential and the "discipline" exercises are obligatory for students attending the course.

The lectures – presentations are open for students wishing to attend them. The "discipline" exercises can be done freely by students from other semesters, provided there is enough space in the Studio.

(4) TEACHING and LEARNING METHODS - EVALUATION

DELIVERY Face-to-face, Distance learning, etc.	Face-to-face, tutorial. Self-reflection and feedback collectively. Lectures, presentations, visits to exhibitions and workshops. With the successful completion of the course, students will:

- have acquired proven knowledge and understanding of the arts as developed during the Medieval Ages in Europe. Will be familiar with the basic characteristics of styles cultivated in different geographical areas and in various eras between the 4th and the 14th century AD. Although the course is a survey course on art produced during a 10 centuries span, it is based on the most recent bibliography.
- be in position to use the knowledge and understanding of this art in order to identify the essential characteristics of style that are revived in later eras and can be traced in today's world.
- have the ability to form critical judgments in reference to the identification of forms to the medieval art production in various areas in Europe.
- have developed the skills to research in published literature on formal references to the arts of the Middle Ages.

Team work	Criticism and self-criticism
Working in an international environment	Production of free, creative and inductive thinking
Working in an interdisciplinary environment
Production of new research ideas	Others...

- Familiarization with visual arts Language and Vocabulary
- Understanding and management of collective (team) programs and aims of the Sculpture Studio
- Evaluation-self-evaluation of results of individual and collective visual arts research
- Responsibility and collaborative work, as determined by the concept “Studio”
- Application of methodological tools in visual arts research (search for, analysis, synthesis)
- Perception of three-dimensional analogical Space and Scale.

(3) SYLLABUS

The course content of the 3rd semester of Sculpture Studio aims at the design and generation of ideas in the three-dimensional field of analogical plastic-sculptural expression.

- I. Studio practices combined with the valuable help of the theoretical framework, aim at developing the student’s visual arts perspective and research taking into account:
 - The historical language/plastic pluralism of expression
 - Techniques – technological innovations
 - The contemporary political and social environment
 - Greek and foreign visual arts experience
- II. Presentations-lectures from the teaching staff of the Sculpture Studio aim at empowering students. The aim is achieved through the experimental – creative student expression.

The course (3rdsemester) is developed in 13 weeks and is completed with the winter semester examinations. Its contents include:

- Lectures and presentations related to the themes of the required exercises (evaluation subjects of the winter semester)
- Tutorial, self-reflection and student feedback in relation to the produced work.
- Collective observations and evaluation of good practices in the produced work.

The exercises are “discipline” exercises and “free expression” exercises.

Note: The Sculpture courses (semesters) are sequential and the “discipline” exercises are obligatory for students attending the course.

The lectures – presentations are open for students wishing to attend them. The “discipline” exercises can be done freely by students from other semesters, provided there is enough space in the Studio.

(4) TEACHING and LEARNING METHODS - EVALUATION

DELIVERY Face-to-face, Distance learning, etc.	Face-to-face, tutorial. Self-reflection and feedback collectively. Lectures, presentations, visits to exhibitions and workshops. Participation in projects, workshops, events and cooperation with local institutions and local authorities.

(2) LEARNING OUTCOMES

Learning outcomes
This course is an introduction to computer programming concepts in the context of the visual arts. Using the Processing programming language, techniques for creating interactive artworks are analysed. The expected learning outcomes are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Familiarise and recognise the logic of computer programming. • To distinguish the different elements of a computer program and assess how each one of these can be used to achieve the desired output of a computer program that they themselves code. • To be able to examine the process of producing digital artworks. • To be able to create synthetic images and animations with interactive elements programmatically.
General Competences
Taking into consideration the general competences that the degree-holder must acquire (as these appear in the Diploma Supplement and appear below), at which of the following does the course aim? Search for, analysis and synthesis of data and information, with the use of the necessary technology Decision-making Working independently Working in an interdisciplinary environment Production of free, creative and inductive thinking

(3) SYLLABUS

The course is an introduction to the application of computer science technology for the arts. The main objective of the course is the creation and composition of digital images with programming tools. This introduction to programming will provide an opportunity to explore the potential of software in the arts and how a computer becomes a medium rather than being used as a tool.

In the course modules are examined:

1. Introduction to the concepts of computer programming within the context of the visual arts. Highlighting of the differences between various programming languages. Historical reference to the use of programming for the arts. Presentation of sample artworks that utilize programming.
2. Basic Processing coding syntax. The 2D coordinate system. The RGB color system. Functions for background color definition, color and thickness for the contour of shapes. Functions for drawing basic geometric shapes: point(), line(), triangle(), quad(), rect(), ellipse().
3. Graphics drawing with motion (animation). The use of the functions setup(), draw() and framerate(). Interacting with the mouse.
4. The use of variables. Operators to perform math operations and the assignment of values to variables. The use of variables and operations for drawing multiple shapes. The bitmap and vector types of images.
5. The use of random numbers for drawing graphics.
6. The logic operators and the logical structure if, else, else if and how they can be used to control the flow of a program.
7. The logic and syntax of repetition structures for drawing graphics. The array data structure in programming and its use for creating complex animated graphics.

STUDENT PERFORMANCE EVALUATION Description of the evaluation procedure Language of evaluation, methods of evaluation, summative or conclusive, multiple choice questionnaires, short-answer questions, open-ended questions, problem solving, written work, essay/report, oral examination, public	Evaluation criteria are accessible to the students via the course webpage. During the semester Summative evaluation is achieved through two exercises that require short answers and is completed with use of the moodle system.

presentation, laboratory work, clinical examination of patient, art interpretation, other Specifically-defined evaluation criteria are given, and if and where they are accessible to students.	Conclusive evaluation is achieved through a programming project and the final examination that is comprised of short-answer programming questions and is completed with use of the moodle system. The exercises, the project and the final examination are available both in Greek and English.

Taking into consideration the general competences that the degree-holder must acquire (as these appear in the Diploma Supplement and appear below), at which of the following does the course aim?

Search for, analysis and synthesis of data and information, with the use of the necessary technology	Project planning and management
Adapting to new situations	Respect for difference and multiculturalism
Decision-making	Respect for the natural environment
Working independently	Showing social, professional and ethical responsibility and sensitivity to gender issues
Team work	Criticism and self-criticism
Working in an international environment	Production of free, creative and inductive thinking
Working in an interdisciplinary environment
Production of new research ideas	Others...

Decision making
 Autonomous work
 Respect for diversity and multiculturalism
 Respect for the natural environment
 Social, work and ethical responsibility and sensitivity in issues related to gender.
 Ability to exert criticism and self-criticism
 Promotion of free, creative and inductive thinking.

(3) SYLLABUS

The course is an introduction to the New Media Art and examines artistic production using modern technology. Older and contemporary works of Digital Art, Animation, Video Art and Experimental Cinema are presented and studied.

(3) SYLLABUS

The course studio orientation Painting IV, as well as the course Painting III, develops in two axes: (a) to delve more deeply into issues of plastic language “drawing, synthesis, colour” through practical exercises and studio compositions, model from natural, as well as (b) through special thematic exercises in which students are asked to compose, analyse and structure conceptually and practically their own visual proposal. Studio lessons include practice, theory and doing assignments. Theory involves critical analysis of works of art, aesthetic approach of a work of art, in issues related to: a) visual perception, b) colour theories, c) the structure of image and finally, d) study of the theoretical basis in relation to the nature and function of media and critical analysis of the produced image. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Drawing exercises – studies in models or studio compositions • Drawing from natural of human figure of a model. • Exercises in the colour cycle, compositions from natural with colour with an emphasis on space organization and the interpretation of the complementary relationship of colours. • Mixed techniques • Exercises with a thematic-conceptual character requiring synthetic/conceptual analytical skills and exercises involving establishing the concept of the work of art. The syllabus is supported with a series of lectures and visits to exhibition spaces and museums.

General Competences

Taking into consideration the general competences that the degree-holder must acquire (as these appear in the Diploma Supplement and appear below), at which of the following does the course aim?

Search for, analysis and synthesis of data and information, with the use of the necessary technology	Project planning and management
Adapting to new situations	Respect for difference and multiculturalism
Decision-making	Respect for the natural environment
Working independently	Showing social, professional and ethical responsibility and sensitivity to gender issues
Team work	Criticism and self-criticism
Working in an international environment	Production of free, creative and inductive thinking
Working in an interdisciplinary environment
Production of new research ideas	Others...

- Idea design and management
- Management of collective (team) programs and aims of the Sculpture Studio
- Evaluation and self-evaluation of results of individual and collective visual arts research
- Responsibility and team-collaborative work in common projects
- Application of methodological tools in visual arts research (search for, analysis, synthesis)
- Management of three-dimensional analogical Space and Scale
- Introduction to the three-dimensional design with digital tools

(3) SYLLABUS

The course content of the 4th semester of Sculpture Studio aims at introducing students to the three-dimensional digital design of space and form with the evolution of the analogical plastic-sculptural expression.

- I. Studio practices combined with the valuable help of the theoretical framework, aim at developing the student's visual arts perspective and research taking into account:
 - The historical language/plastic pluralism of expression
 - Techniques – technological innovations
 - The contemporary political and social environment
 - The Greek and foreign visual arts experience
- II. Presentations-lectures from the teaching staff of the Sculpture Studio aim at making students active agents in the visual arts field of the social environment. The aim is achieved through:
 - Collaborative work (team exercise/virtual installation of sculptural work in public space)
 - Students' experimental-creative personal expression

The course (4th semester) is developed in 13 weeks and is completed with the summer semester examination. Its contents include:

- Lectures and presentations related to the themes of the required exercises (evaluation subjects of the winter semester)
- Tutorial, self-reflection and student feedback in relation to the produced work.
- Collective observations and evaluation of good practices in the produced work.

The exercises are "discipline" exercises and "free expression" exercises.

Note: The Sculpture courses (semesters) are sequential and the "discipline" exercises are obligatory for students attending the course.

The lectures – presentations are open for students wishing to attend them. The "discipline" exercises can be done freely by students from other semesters, provided there is enough space in the Studio.

(3) SYLLABUS

The semester has a duration of 13 weeks. Lessons are weekly and last 3 hours each.

The first 3 weeks are an introduction to the concept of Video Art and the media and techniques used. Students watch projections and presentations which analyse the work of artists related to the history and evolution of Video Art. In the fourth week students are given the assignment topic for the semester.

Students can choose 1 out of 3 different assignment topics which are accessible at (<http://ecourse.uoi.gr/course/view.php?id=831>)

The basic principles and techniques of video production in all its stages are analysed: (Pre-Production, Production, Post-Production). The camera functions are presented, the types of shots and their relationships, cinematography control, sound issues, etc. Introduction to the basic principles of digital montage, as well as relevant software (Adobe Premiere).

In the next 3 weeks (5th-6th-7th) the students' proposals are presented and discussed in the presence of all students, while exchange of ideas from all participant takes place.

The 8th week students make a preliminary presentation of their work, in the form of a model, photographs, video, etc., which shows the way they have chosen to present their topic.

In the next four weeks of the semester students work on their assignments in and outside of the studio. The professor provides help guides the progress of the works/assignments.

In the last lesson (13th week) the final presentation of the works before all students and the professor takes place.

Production of free, creative and visual arts thinking.

(3) SYLLABUS

The semester lasts 13 weeks. Lessons are weekly and have a duration of three hours each.

In the first three weeks students are introduced to the concept of installations and become acquainted with the techniques used. Students watch presentations of works of well-known artists and lectures of contemporary Greek artists who manage space.

In the fourth week students are presented with the topics of the assignments during the semester. There are two assignments. In the first assignment students are asked to manage the concept of "shelter", a topic which is common with that of workshop Painting VI in the framework of cooperation between the two workshops. The second assignment has a free topic of the students' choice, after consulting the professor.

During the next three weeks (5th, to 7th), students make suggestions and examine the ways through which the suggestions will be realized. The suggestions are presented in the workshop, in the presence of all students. There is exchange of opinions, from all participants, regarding ways of working and supervision of the processes by the professor.

In the 8th week students make a preliminary presentation of their work, in the form of a model, photograph, video, etc., which shows the way they have chosen to present their topic.

In the following four weeks students work on their assignments in the workshop and away from it. The professor provides help and guidance.

In the last lesson (13th week) the final presentation of the works takes place in the presence of the students and the professor.

(3) SYLLABUS

Lessons 1-3) An introduction to the concept of “humour”. Prehistory of the term from natural philosophy to the eve of the modern era (“Everyone out of his humour”). Theorizing on the emotional basis of humour and its amphithymic nature: humour’s connection with aggression and disparaging, melancholy or satisfaction, inspire and propel several theories, from the classic 18th century philosophies to modern related approaches. The field includes, among else, Hobbes’s theory of humour as aggression, Freudian and post- Freudian approaches, Bakhtin’s idea of humour as an agent of a necessary “grounding” of sublimated and abstract social ideals. Humour beyond its psychological motivation: linguistic and meaning theories.

Lesson 4) The concept of sketching. Visual satire and the concepts of satirical sketching, caricature and cartoon.

Lesson 5) Satirical sketching as sui-generis mimesis. The creation of “characters”, from Theophrastus and the physiognomists to the caricaturists. Limits and aberrations of the satirical sketch: demonological and teratological cartoons.

Lesson 6-11) A historical itinerary on the history of caricature: prehistory and proto-history of the genre. Renaissance and the Reformation. 18th century and the emergence of political caricature. 19th century and the creation of periodical caricature. 20th century and the contemporary scene.

(3) SYLLABUS

The course aims at helping students understand the relationship between figure and space, the development of a modern visual art approach of this relationship, as well as the acquisition of the methodological tools for representation. Exercises and the study of figure aim at approaching the above relationships, as well as the relationship between body and space, as it developed through the tradition of post modernism and the practices and movements of contemporary visual arts production.

Special emphasis is placed on the understanding of concept such as scale, analogy, negative, positive and intermediary space. Exercises have the aim of acquainting students with expressive media, methodology and theme development, research and collection of relevant material, as well as the documentation of the creative process.

The educational process includes lectures, team and individual work (exercises) and activities aiming at the formation and development of an individual visual art language.

The semester has a duration of 13 weeks. Lessons are weekly and last 3 hours each. In the first three weeks students are given the topic of the assignment for the semester. Students can choose 1 out of 3 topics which are accessible in the e-course platform (http://ecourse.uoi.gr/course/view.php?id=832). Students need to delve deeper into the plastic capabilities and the technical characteristics of video art (and animation in general), so as to use them as an expressive media in artistic works. During the semester lectures are given related to the topics and presentations of artists' works. Emphasis is placed in familiarization with expressive media, approach methodology, topic development and the formulation of a personal artistic proposal. In the next weeks the presentation of the proposals takes place, technical issues and solutions are discussed and the execution of the works begins. In the last 2 weeks students' works are presented.

(3) SYLLABUS

The course is elective (optional) for both orientations and takes place in parallel with the orientation course Painting.

Through thematic exercises students have the opportunity to delve deeper into related morphoplastic issues raised in the core courses.

The course involves drawing, plastic exercises through which research into new expressive ways which aim at rendering the two-dimensional as well as the three-dimensional surface is encouraged. At the same time the course aims at further familiarizing students with materials and techniques of the visual language, the use of new expressive means/materials, methodological tools and representation models.

The thematic exercises are announced at the beginning of the semester and are accompanied by presentations/lectures and synergies with the rest studios of the Department.

 Respect for diversity and multiculturalism
 Respect for the natural environment
 Social, work and ethical responsibility and sensitivity in gender issues.
 Ability to exert criticism and self-criticism
 Promotion of free, creative and inductive thinking.

(3) SYLLABUS

The course builds on the plastic concern over body and space as well as on the course Sculpture V (5th semester) placing emphasis on the morphological and conceptual extensions of body and space, the deconstruction of limit and the morphological relationships as they result from the reports and practices of contemporary production of visual arts.

Concepts directly or indirectly related to the body are examined, such as place-residence, limit, “dismemberment”, deconstruction, integration, performance, etc. Emphasis is placed on the comprehension of the plastic vocabulary, the acquaintance with expressive media, methodology and development of a topic, research and collection of material, as well as the documentation of the creative process.

The educational process includes lectures, team and individual work (exercises) and activities aiming at the formation and development of an individual visual art language.

General Competences

Taking into consideration the general competences that the degree-holder must acquire (as these appear in the Diploma Supplement and appear below), at which of the following does the course aim?

Search for, analysis and synthesis of data and information, with the use of the necessary technology
 Adapting to new situations
 Decision-making
 Working independently
 Team work
 Working in an international environment
 Working in an interdisciplinary environment
 Production of new research ideas

Project planning and management
 Respect for difference and multiculturalism
 Respect for the natural environment
 Showing social, professional and ethical responsibility and sensitivity to gender issues
 Criticism and self-criticism
 Production of free, creative and inductive thinking

(3) SYLLABUS

The semester has a duration of 13 weeks. Lessons are weekly and last 3 hours each.

In the first three weeks students are given the topic of the assignment for the semester. Students can choose 1 out of 3 topics which are accessible in the e-course platform (<http://ecourse.uoi.gr/course/view.php?id=833>)

Students with the help of the professor learn how to further develop and implement their personal artistic proposals. Emphasis is placed on issues related to multiple projections in space: organization and layout of projections in space, narration issues, significance of elements, size of the work, spectator place and motion, synchronisation, duration and repetitions, technical specifications. Exploration of the aesthetic potential and extensions of the video: non-linear narrations, hyperlinks, interaction, etc.

During the semester there are lectures related to the topics and presentations of artists' works
 In the next weeks the presentation of the proposals takes place, technical issues and solutions are discussed and the execution of the works begins. In the last 2 weeks the students' works are presented.

(3) SYLLABUS

The course is elective (optional) for both orientations and takes place in parallel with the orientation course Painting.

Through thematical exercises students have the opportunity to delve deeper into related morphoplastic issues raised in the core courses.

The course involves doing exercises with the use of new expressive media/materials and methodological tools and representation models. Drawing examples from contemporary art, students are encouraged to experiment with the materiality of their painting footprint and colour (tactile/visual qualities) and with its transfer and representation in two or three dimensions.

The thematical exercises are announced at the beginning of the semester and are accompanied by presentations/lectures and synergies with the rest studios of the Department.

After course completion students will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - be able to gain insights into basic issues related to visual arts language - be able to interpret more specific issues related to depiction - have developed visual arts thinking - have chosen personal expressive media and will have started creating a personal style - be able to compile visual arts suggestions with clarity of intentions and expressive excellence.

General Competences

Taking into consideration the general competences that the degree-holder must acquire (as these appear in the Diploma Supplement and appear below), at which of the following does the course aim?

Search for, analysis and synthesis of data and information, with the use of the necessary technology	Project planning and management
Adapting to new situations	Respect for difference and multiculturalism
Decision-making	Respect for the natural environment
Working independently	Showing social, professional and ethical responsibility and sensitivity to gender issues
Team work	Criticism and self-criticism
Working in an international environment	Production of free, creative and inductive thinking
Working in an interdisciplinary environment
Production of new research ideas	Others...

- Search for, analysis and synthesis of data, organization strategy of the visual arts suggestion and communicative design.
- Criticism and self-criticism
- Production of free, creative and visual arts thinking

The main aim is for students to understand the basic principles of the visual arts language and vocabulary and the evolution of the process of visual arts research, methodology for the development of the topic and the building of a strategy for depiction.

(3) SYLLABUS

The Painting workshop aims at contributing to the development of an extended visual arts practice and introduce students into contemporary visual arts pursuits as they are formed through the broadness and variety of the expressive media.

The course Painting VII is a continuation of the painting courses of the previous semesters and, like in these, special emphasis is placed on the development of visual arts thinking and the maturation of personal expression. Visual arts action is approached through the initial report, the topic, motivation, design and strategies, and the action models which will be followed, so that the form becomes a carrier of meaning.

The workshop, through the development of new thematic units, is open to experimentation regarding the creative process and issues related to contemporary art. At the same time, it forms the basis for the dissertation, which is written by students during the 9th and 10th semester.

In addition, special topics are introduced, about which the students need to present visual arts work with free use of media and techniques. Lectures during the semester on the requested topics and presentations/analyses of artists' works.

The development of the course content takes place in 13 weeks as follows:

- Lectures on the required topics (different each academic year) and presentations/analyses of artists' works.
- Tutorials
- Team corrections: analysis of typical errors or solutions of the students' work in the presence of all students and professors of the course.

AIM:

The development of technical possibilities of students and research on the mechanisms of visual arts creation, the evolution of personal style, research, personal fiction and the articulation of visual arts discourse.

What is needed

Assignments in issues which are useful for the creation of a personal style and methodology. Students work systematically in these issues using any expressive media they wish. Lessons are open to the use of new media and technology, in combination with traditional visual arts practices, as well as new methods of approaching and processing information and form.

Assignments are different each year.

In the previous academic year the assignment topic was ("Crime/Art Scenes") <http://z7-8.blogspot.gr/2011/12/7-8.html> .

In the academic year 2013-14 the topic will be scale(<http://z7scaleless.wordpress.com/>).

Students are asked to: a) do research in relation to the use of scale in artists' work and present a critical analysis and think about the relationship between the work and the spectator, b) to create a visual arts work using scale.

(3) SYLLABUS

The course involves theoretical and practical approach in issues related to space, with exercises aiming at the understanding of the relationship between the work and its surroundings. Using as a starting point the basic principles of sculpture and the theoretical approaches of post modernity and, mainly, placing an emphasis on sculpture as an extended visual arts practice, a redefinition of the terms is attempted, negotiating again the systems of representation themselves.

The course is developed in three basic units, which examine concepts in relation to the development of a sculptural form in space, the structure and the viewer's role. Emphasis is placed on the methodology and development of the theme, research, collection of related material and the documentation of the procedure. Students are encouraged to experiment combining various materials (e.g. photography, video, etc.), scale, but also the way (sculpture, installations, etc.) emphasizing sculpture as an extended visual art practice and the displacement of the concept of space.

The educational process includes lectures, team and individual work (exercises) and activities aiming at the formation and development of an individual visual arts language.

(3) SYLLABUS

The course is elective (optional) for both orientations and takes place in parallel with the orientation course Painting.

Through thematic exercises students have the opportunity to delve deeper into related morphoplastic issues raised in the core courses.

The course involves doing exercises with the use of new expressive media/materials and methodological tools and representation models. Drawing examples from contemporary art students are encouraged to experiment with materiality of their painting footprint and colour and its conceptual extensions (report/representation/narrativity, linear or non-linear)

Finally, emphasis is placed on the development of structured argumentation through a short text (300 words) which will support the final work.

The thematic exercises are announced at the beginning of the semester and are accompanied by presentations/lectures and synergies with the rest studios of the Department.

(2) LEARNING OUTCOMES

Learning outcomes
After completing the course, the student should have clarified concepts and functions associated with graphic design as a written form of communication. More specifically, he should: Identify and solve visual communication problems. To develop and broaden his visual perception. Apply the same design principles to visualize an idea by approaching concepts such as typography, symbolism, abstraction, language and text. Analyze the process of developing visual ideas through research activities. Become familiar with modern design styles and be able to handle digital design software. To develop a critical understanding of the aesthetic and functional value of various graphic applications.
General Competences
Taking into consideration the general competences that the degree-holder must acquire (as these appear in the Diploma Supplement and appear below), at which of the following does the course aim?
Search for, analysis and synthesis of data and information, with the use of the necessary technology Adapting to new situations Decision-making Working independently Team work Project planning and management Respect for difference and multiculturalism Criticism and self-criticism Production of free, creative and inductive thinking

(3) SYLLABUS

The course focuses on the practical application of fundamental principles and theoretical concepts around the field of graphic design. More specifically the module includes:

The history and evolution of graphic design and typography.

The visualization of objects and abstract ideas, through the study and application of principles of visual communication.

Developing and expanding visual perception through the use of modern technology.

The use of modern electronic design tools and digital preprinting processes, with references to traditional graphic design methods.

Production of new research ideas

- Search for, analysis and synthesis of data, organization strategy of the visual arts suggestion and communicative design.
- Criticism and self-criticism
- Production of free, creative and visual arts thinking

The main aim is for students to understand the basic principles of the visual arts language and vocabulary and the evolution of the process of visual arts research, methodology for the development of the topic and the building of a strategy for depiction.

(3) SYLLABUS

The Painting workshop aims at contributing to the development of an extended visual arts practice and introduce students into contemporary visual arts pursuits as they are formed through the broadness and variety of the expressive media.

The course is a continuation of the workshops of previous semesters and, like in these, special emphasis is placed on the development of visual arts thinking and the maturation of personal expression. Visual arts action is approached through the initial report, the topic, motivation, design and strategies, and the action models which will be followed, so that the form becomes a carrier of meaning.

The workshop, through the development of new thematic units, is open to experimentation regarding the creative process and issues related to contemporary art. At the same time, it forms the basis for the dissertation, which is written by students during the 9th and 10th semester.

In addition, special topics are introduced, about which the students need to present visual arts work with free use of media and techniques. Lectures during the semester on the requested topics and presentations/analyses of artists' works.

The development of the course content takes place in 13 weeks as follows:

- Lectures on the required topics (different each academic year) and presentations/analyses of artists' works.
- Tutorials
- Team corrections: analysis of typical errors or solutions of the students' work in the presence of all students and professors of the course.

(4) TEACHING and LEARNING METHODS - EVALUATION

After course completion students will have an understanding of the techniques and expressive movements in sculpture and become acquainted with the expressive means, methodological tools for representation and research. They are also expected to acquire critical thinking skills and argumentation, forming, thus, the framework for the development of a personal artistic language necessary for the dissertation.

General Competences

Taking into consideration the general competences that the degree-holder must acquire (as these appear in the Diploma Supplement and appear below), at which of the following does the course aim?

Search for, analysis and synthesis of data and information, with the use of the necessary technology	Project planning and management
Adapting to new situations	Respect for difference and multiculturalism
Decision-making	Respect for the natural environment
Working independently	Showing social, professional and ethical responsibility and sensitivity to gender issues
Team work	Criticism and self-criticism
Working in an international environment	Production of free, creative and inductive thinking
Working in an interdisciplinary environment
Production of new research ideas	Others...

Decision making
Autonomous work
Team work
Respect for diversity and multiculturalism
Respect for the natural environment
Social, work and ethical responsibility and sensitivity in gender issues.
Ability to exert criticism and self-criticism
Promotion of free, creative and inductive thinking.

(3) SYLLABUS

The course involves a theoretical and practical approach in issues related to space, like the course Sculpture VII (7th semester). Using their knowledge, the methodological tools and critical skills, students are asked to examine the displacement of the concept of space and work on thematical areas of their choice placing emphasis on sculpture as an extended visual arts practice.

The course aims at orchestrating the production of visual arts, placing emphasis on the creation of a personal expressive language and the production of work through processes and practices that aim at acquiring methodology – an essential tool for writing the dissertation.

The educational process includes lectures, team and individual work (exercises) and activities aiming at the formation and development of an individual visual arts language.

(3) SYLLABUS

The course is elective (optional) for both orientations and takes place in parallel with the orientation course Painting.

Through thematic exercises students have the opportunity to delve deeper into related morphoplastic issues raised in the core courses.

The course involves doing exercises with the use of new expressive media/materials and methodological tools and representation models. Drawing examples from contemporary art students are encouraged to experiment with materiality of their painting footprint and colour and its conceptual extensions (report/representation/narrativity, linear or non-linear)

Finally, emphasis is placed on the development of a structures argumentation through a short text (300 words) which will support the final work.

The thematic exercises are announced at the beginning of the semester and are accompanied by presentations/lectures and synergies with the rest studios of the Department.

General Competences

Taking into consideration the general competences that the degree-holder must acquire (as these appear in the Diploma Supplement and appear below), at which of the following does the course aim?

Search for, analysis and synthesis of data and information, with the use of the necessary technology

Adapting to new situations

Decision-making

Working independently

Team work

Working in an international environment

Working in an interdisciplinary environment

Production of new research ideas

Project planning and management

Respect for difference and multiculturalism

Respect for the natural environment

Showing social, professional and ethical responsibility and sensitivity to gender issues

Criticism and self-criticism

Production of free, creative and inductive thinking

Others...

- Working independently
- Project planning and management
- Respect for the natural environment
- Production of free, creative and inductive thinking
- Perception of three-dimensional analogue space and scale
- Ability to solve technical problems

(3) SYLLABUS

The course has a duration of 13 weeks and is completed with the spring examination. The course contents are:

- Doing exercises
- Individual and collective management of the Marble Sculpture Studio
- Educational visits to thematic marble technology exhibitions, Marble sculpture studios and archaeological sites.
- Participation in sculpture symposia
- Lectures and presentations related to the subject of the exercises (evaluation subjects of the spring semester)

More specifically:

- Hologlyph (idea-model-natural size-transfer to material) – exercise (work in progress from the course Marble Sculpture III)
- Art and technology with the use of digital tools – digital applications
- Modern methods for rock processing (CNC Routers, cutting routers, systems for machine processing with robots 5/7 axes, etc.)
- Glues, varnishes, lotion (traditional and modern marble polishing techniques)
- General principles for the restoration and conservation of works of art in marble or stone.

(4) TEACHING and LEARNING METHODS - EVALUATION

DELIVERY

Face-to-face, Distance learning, etc.

Face-to-face, tutorial. Self-reflection and feedback collectively. Lectures, presentations, visits to exhibitions and workshops. Participation in projects, workshops, marble sculpture symposia.

Learning outcomes
After completing the course, the student: Should have developed visual sensitivity to the depiction of ideas, concepts and images. Be able to analyze the process of developing visual ideas through the organization of research activities. Apply the various techniques of digital illustration. Be familiar with modern design styles and handle digital design software. Be able to integrate digital techniques into his / her personal work. Have acquired or developed a critical understanding of the aesthetic and functional value of different applications.

(3) SYLLABUS

The course focuses on the fields of illustration and poster design within the framework of graphic design. The focus is the presentation and application of illustration techniques resulting from digital design software while the student is studying and applying design principles. He is encouraged to combine the above techniques by other means with his personal work. The aim is to enrich or remodel his personal choices in his visual work, eventually forming his own visual language.

Emphasis is placed on book illustration and poster design, analyzing all the stages required - from the conception of the concept and conceptual study, to the final printing and bookbinding.

Learning outcomes
Upon completion of the course, students will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Know the basic principles underlying the Material Civilisation as it developed during the 18th and 19th century in the pre-industrial societies. - Identify the local peculiarities of manifestations of the Material Life. - Identify the special features of Material Civilisation as they were formed in the specific historical, social and economic circumstances.
General skills
Autonomous work Team work Respect for diversity and multiculturalism Promotion of free, creative and inductive thinking

(3) COURSE CONTENT

The course examines the material civilisation of pre-industrial society, in its three main aspects: housing, nutrition and clothing. These are aspects of everyday life that evolve slowly, in a specific historic context. The material objects, as well as the manifestations related to the means and methods of production and the ways of dealing with living needs are closely related to geography, commerce, cultural exchanges, social life and social hierarchies. It has to be underlined that the material objects, apart from their usability, function at a symbolic level and reflect social relationships.

More specifically, the following thematic units are taught:

- Natural and man-made environment
- Housing
- Nutrition
- Clothing
